Phillack Cemetery Access Project

as told by Trevor Smitheram

All this came about because when I was up tending to my brother's grave, and speaking to quite a few people it seems elderly people were really afraid of going up to the top cemetery because of the difficulty of coming down, and I am led to believe people have fallen down into the bushes. So I contacted the vicar of Phillack and offered to put a handrail up there approx. 53 feet long (at no cost to the church,) Permission was given , so I went back up to the top, dug a few trial holes, and measured up what I felt was required,

My first part was to try and raise some money, and the Hayle Pump was so very generous with a donation .Next S.J. Andrews of Redruth gave us discount because of the amount of piping and fixings required, Jewsons supported us as well with postcrete, and finally Philps supplied the pasties. Two of our team took a day off from work to help for which we are truly grateful, there was myself, towards the end of last year when every newt disappeared, almost overnight. I worried that something harmful had got into the water, or that I'd cleared away too much of the green weed that proliferated on the surface. In the end, I had to accept they had just gone away for the winter. They are the most beautiful of small creatures, and I was overjoyed when they reappeared a couple of weeks ago. The cold, frosty nights have ensured they stay on the bottom of the pond, but I spy them sunbathing on the warmer afternoons. I am surprised myself at how much pleasure they give to me. It must be good for the soul!

A pleasing sight on Copperhouse Pool was 13 shelduck, presumably parents and children. They grazed not far from Black Bridge, making them easy to see, a handsome sight. As I've said before, there is always something of interest for those who care to look.

Letters to the Editor

Sir,

Experts are saying we use too many antibiotics.

I am 76 years of age and of age and have never taken an antibiotic.

In the 1950's, for 5 months of the year I swam nearly every day in the Copperhouse Pool when it contained all of Hayle Sewerage plus many other items that were flushed down the toilet – very good for your complexion and immune system - swimming in the Copperhouse Pool caused my cuts to become infected and were treated with kaolin poultice.

No antibiotics.

Sir,

I returned to Hayle after a number of years and could not believe my eyes. The development over North Quay has completely ruined Hayle. Quite how this was allowed I can't imagine. Traffic through Hayle is already a bit of a nightmare .

I wonder how many will become second homes and if any locals will be able to buy an affordable (affordable! What a laugh.) home ?

(Disgusted) Name and address supplied

A man went to his lawyer and told him, "My neighbour owes me £500 and he won't pay up. What should I do?" "Do you have any proof he owes you the money?" asked the lawyer. "Nope," replied the man. "OK, then write him a letter asking him for the £5,000 he owed you," said the lawyer. "But it's only £500," replied the man. "Precisely. That's what he will reply and then you'll have your proof!"

Millponds Update

It seems that spring has already arrived meteorologically, but if you are an old- fashioned lady like me true Spring will arrive on March 21st, the first of the four annual quarter days.

The ponds are very quiet at the moment because most of our ducks have moved to their breeding grounds around Hayle. The drakes which do not find mates will drift back to the Millponds again and become the "Scruffy Brigade" when they moult their breeding plumage and settle in for the Summer.-

We have already been joined by two old friends. The swans Odin and Solo arrived during the past week in February and very swiftly made themselves at home

Odin does visit periodically but this is Solo's first time on the Ponds. He also seems to be enjoying himself and both swans seems quite settled at the moment and they will probably get quite spoiled while they are with us.

The winter gulls have also started to leave for their breeding grounds. The Black Headed gulls go back to Wales and our two Mediterranean Gulls have also headed South

The ponds are still very clean and the daffodils are now beginning to bloom around the banks of the ponds and in the gardens along the edges of the lawns.

The cherry tree by the main entrance has been really spectacular covered in pink blossom this year. At least we have some seasonal beauty to enjoy during the Lock Down.

The Christmas lights are now gone and the whole area is still clean and tidy, the only sad event was the loss of our little willow by the bench at the top pond which was snapped in half by the severe winds of Storm Adam, but it might grow up again from the root.

Thank you everybody for your help. It is great to know how much you care. We look forward to happier times during the true Spring time!

See you all again soon

FRIENDS OF THE TOWANS FLYING THEIR NEW FLAGS ON TOWANS SOON!

After a very long and pretty wet winter, the local group of conservation volunteers Friends of the Towans is planning to start activities again from March 29th, subject to covid restrictions being eased. The group managed a little activity in the autumn, but then the two winter lock-downs put paid to any more group outings, just at a time when people would have benefited from some outdoor exercise, fresh air and company. Since then, several contractors have managed to continue site management work, in particular on part of St Ives Bay Park, Mexico Towans and Godrevy Warren. Most of this work is funded via Natural England schemes, but the Riviere Estate has also funded some work next to Riviere Sands, where brambles had become abundant.

Towans Ranger Martin Rule has now devised a full programme of outings for local volunteers to help put the finishing touches to this work. Many of the cuttings remain lying on the ground, and if left to rot down would smother young seedlings, and enrich the soil making it less suitable for sand dune grassland to re-establish. Martin says it might seem like gardening the countryside and in a way it is, but it's the only realistic way to bring some of the specialised habitats back into healthy condition. By raking some areas back to bare sand, we create pockets of hot ground for ants, butterflies and lizards to bask on, for example.

Anybody is welcome to get involved. We provide tools, gloves and good company and work in a very relaxed manner.

During the last three decades, the charity has provided a safe haven of care, support and friendship for thousands of local families with a seriously ill child. And in its 30th year, supporters are being asked to help it create more cherished memories for many years to come.

A £1m fundraising appeal to build the South West's first children's hospice was launched in 1991 by Eddie and Jill Farwell, who experienced the urgent need for hospice care for local children. Their two eldest children, Katie and Tom, had life-limiting illnesses and the family had to travel more than four hours, from their home in North Devon to Helen House in Oxford, then the country's only children's hospice.

Mr Farwell, who is the charity's chief executive, said the idea to build a children's hospice came to him during the middle of a restless night, and despite being told to 'stop being so silly and go back to sleep' by his late wife Jill, the idea began to take shape.

“From that bonkers statement, an idea grew,” said Mr Farwell.

“We knew that there were many hundreds of families in the West Country who should also have the opportunity to experience the benefits which we were receiving at Helen House.”

The couple started fundraising in the laundry room of their home and spent days, evenings and weekends on the road with printed leaflets talking to anyone who would listen about the project.

In 1995, Little Bridge House opened its doors in Fremington, near Barnstaple. Huge demand for its services led to the opening of the charity’s second hospice, Charlton Farm, near Bristol, in 2007. And in 2011 Little Harbour, which will also be celebrating it’s 10th anniversary this year, opened in St Austell. Little Harbour was the final piece in the CHSW jigsaw, meaning that no matter where families live in the South West, need it, including in the hospices, and for the first time ever, in families' own homes.

The charity needs around £11m a year to run its three children's hospices, and around 85 per cent is raised through voluntary donations.

"Katie and Tom, who had so little that this world values, not only inspired their parents, but also many thousands of people to create CHSW, which has helped and will continue to help, many hundreds of families across the South West,” said Mr Farwell.

“It has been a tremendous journey and so many children and families have been helped along the way at each of our three hospices. That work would not have been possible without the continued faithfulness and generosity of people all over the South West.

“So we hope they will join with us in 2021 and celebrate this wonderful milestone, and all that they have helped us achieve.

“We have lots of fundraising ideas on our website and anything people are able to do to help, no matter how big or small, will make a real difference to families in 2021.

“Together, we can continue to create more memories to be cherished for another 30 years.”

There are lots of ways people can support CHSW during its 30th year and every penny raised will help CHSW continue to care for very poorly children and families. To get involved visit www.chsw.org.uk/30

Living Dangerously

Over the course of time, with all the new diseases that have been discovered, I am wondering if I belong to a "Super Race" to have survived them all. Us Celts must be a tough lot, especially the Cornish. Up until now I have survived Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy(BSE), Salmonella, and Listeria. Then this deadly gas, Radon, I am told is highly concentrated in Cornwall, because it has a liking for granite. I have gone over my property with a trowel and a bucket of cement, and filled in every crack and hole. In the old days all cracks in the floor were painted white to keep out the devil! But that won't keep this Radon Gas out. The ground has to be excavated under the floor and powerful extractor fans installed. If you go along with that, you will believe the brass mines in Cornwall are a profitable investment!

Now I have to brace myself to combat Mycobacterium avium subspecies para-tuberculosis found in milk (M.A.P.), despite the fact that thousands of pounds have been spent on equipment for pasteurising milk, and very stringent tests are made. These boffins still see adanger. I have been drinking milk all my life, also my family, sisters and parents.

My dear old Grandmother died at the early age of just over a hundred, and the wife's granny lived to a hundred and a bit. I find it hard to understand how us Cornish folk have survived. My family alone can top over two hundred years. Are we ready to fight the next round of bugs, viruses and nasties that the boffins can throw at us? Or are we becoming a nation of happy healthy hypochondriacs?!

Charles Crowle)

Foundry Square

An old man sits alone, in Foundry Square, he wonders, just how long will it be there,
With all this talk that's going on, the Square he knew, will soon be gone,

It seems it doesn't matter that,
this was where, the old men sat, in bowler hats with their pipes alight, here they sat, and put the world to right,

His mind goes back to the Great War, he can see his pals there, years before, on parade in the Square, that fateful day, to songs and cheers they marched away,

The Square deserted, once they had gone, still echoed with their parting song, A sergeant then so tall, his voice so loud, an old man now, so bent, still proud,

They fought in France, and did their share,

Too few returned to Foundry Square, A tear now dimmed the old man's eye, He remembers his friends, of times gone by,

And yet he smiled as he got up to leave, the things they say, he

Part two.

After that drama I settled in to school quite happily. The majority of pupils were Catholics, and if I always felt a bit of an outsider when Father Burns with his little Shetland sheepdog Tory came to talk to us about Mass and Confirmation, it didn't really matter. The two nuns that taught us were nearly always kind and patient, even if Sister Josephine Mary was a bit strict and sometimes understandably irritable, she could still hitch up her robes and run around the playground playing rounders with us, and gentle Sister Mary Rita was the closest person to a saint I have ever known. She reigned over the 'Little Ones' and encouraged us to bring in pennies every week to help the sleeping soundly. The lane itself was a treasure house of wild strawberries, Cornish lilies and impossible to catch sand lizards, and sometimes we would meet the gardener who looked after the nuns' beautiful walled garden, with his donkey, which on red letter days we were allowed to ride. My friend Pat and I always stopped at the little tree we had designated 'the wishing tree,' to make a quick wish. Once, on the way home I found a hedgehog ambling up the lane and picked it up and took it home with me on the bus, so that it could make itself comfortable in our garden. That earned me another bath, as my mother was certain that the hedgehog had shared its many fleas with me. Another time in the lane I found a bright green snake, sheltering in the Cornish lily leaves that had exactly the same colour.

It wasn't quite so idyllic in winter. Our long wooden hut had a very small and ineffectual stove at the centre which we were never allowed to stand close to 'because of chilblains.' We spent most of the winter months wearing our coats and gloves while working, and if we walked up to lunch and it was raining had to shiver in wet clothes throughout the afternoon. But we were a tough Cornish lot and survived it all, even if I occasionally fell off my chair in a faint when we had been kneeling too long in prayer, resting our hands on the back of the chair and feeling our knees hurting on the wooden seat.

eight, it was felt that after that they would lose their innocence and begin to corrupt the girls. We must have been taught reasonably well as there was general rejoicing when the whole of our year group passed the 11plus, something that had apparently never happened before...the jubilation not lessened by the fact that the entire year group consisted of four pupils.

So many more memories, all still vivid. I knew at the time that I was lucky, and experiencing something special.

The Last Laugh

A woman was taking an afternoon nap. When she woke up, she told her husband, "I just dreamed that you gave me a pearl necklace. What do you think it means?" "You'll know tonight," he said. That evening, the man came home with a small package and gave it to his wife. Delighted, she opened it to find a book entitled "The Meaning of Dreams."
